

Payments Network Architecture

This document describes the production network path for payment traffic. Traffic enters through the edge load balancer and is routed to backend services. See the architecture diagram for the full topology. Any change to this path requires sign-off from the Platform team.

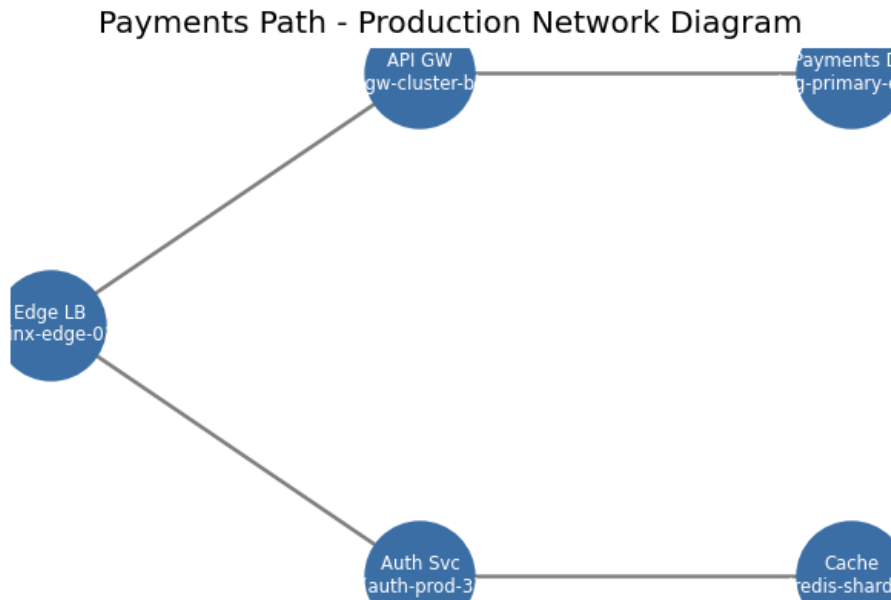

Figure 1: Production network diagram, payments path.